"he said, is to show how they live and not 'to resolve anything.' He hopes he'll be able to awaken the public as to what is going on in the rackets."

On 11/23/59.

[redacted] SA [redacted] confidentially advised that a script of the above-captioned film had been submitted [redacted] by Columbia Pictures, Inc., in early November, 1959. Following a review, Columbia Pictures was advised by letter dated 11/10/59, that the script was unacceptable to the motion picture production code office as its contents clearly violate the code in many ways.

[redacted] explained that the script, which is a gangster story, presents organized crime in a grand scale. Local law enforcement agencies are portrayed as being unable to cope with gangster power. About 10% of the policemen and politicians are described as being paid off by the criminal syndicate. The syndicate's activities in prostitution and dope traffic are portrayed with women being identified as prostitutes in several brothel scenes. Venereal disease among the underworld characters is also commented upon in some detail. Eighteen gangster killings take place, most of which are shown in bloody scenes, thereby making the story a "blood bath" of violence.

These objections have all been conveyed to Columbia Pictures, Inc. [redacted]

[redacted] mentioned that no FBI agents are portrayed in the story, and he does not recall any reference to this agency in any regard.

[redacted] confidential basis could be made by an agent of this office; however, as there are no references to the Bureau in the present story, no review will be made at this time, UACB.

The following news item concerning the above-captioned film appeared in the 10/28/59, issue of "Daily Variety", Hollywood motion picture trade publication:

"FULLER FRANK ABOUT
'UNDERWORLD' SEX

"At a time when the film industry is being severely criticized in many quarters for employing sex and violence in its product, writer-director-producer SAMUEL FULLER frankly states that his next production, 'Underworld, U.S.A.' will contain 'action, sex and violence.'

"FULLER indicated that he deplored the use of these elements for their own sake, but he contends that 'if you have a story about gangs, you must show how they live and operate and how they use violence to terrify people.' FULLER contends that his film, which will be released by Columbia as part of his four-picture deal with the company, will be a unique gangster film in that it has nothing to do with the gangsterism of the '20's. Moreover, he emphasized, there will not be a single policeman, FBI man or undercover agent in the picture. Nor will there be any scenes in a nightclub or bar.

"FULLER's story, the title of which was obtained from a Saturday Evening Post series by a Boston newspaperman, concerns the operation of mobster syndicates in the America of today. According to FULLER, it discusses the big business operation of the syndicates in narcotics, labor, prostitution, sports, lotteries, etc. His aim,
